WARRANT OF APPOINTMENT OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOUNDARIES COMMISSIONER

In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 50(1) of the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 as amended by Article 4 of and Part II of Schedule to the Local Government (Postponement of Elections and Reorganisation) (Northern Ireland) Order 1972 and now vested in me by virtue of Section 40 of and paragraph 4(1) of Schedule 5 to the Northern Ireland Constitution Act 1973 I hereby appoint

SIR FRANCIS ALEXANDER LYLE HARRISON, MBE QC DL

Local Government Boundaries Commissioner to review the number, boundaries and names of the Local Government districts and the number, boundaries and names of wards into which each district is divided.

Dated 28th day of October 1982

JAMES PRIOR

One of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State

Report

submitted to the Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland

REPORT

I was appointed by the Secretary of State by warrant dated 28 October 1982 under the powers conferred by Section 50(1) of the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 as amended "to review the number, boundaries and names of the (local government) districts and the number, boundaries and names of the wards into which each district is divided", and I took up this duty on 1 November 1982.

STATUTORY RULES

1. On 1 November 1982, there were 26 districts with a total of 526 wards which had been established by the Local Government (Boundaries) Order (NI) 1972. The provisions of Part III of Schedule 4 of the 1972 Act required me to formulate my recommendations in accordance with certain rules which (inter alia) provided that —

(i) regard shall be had to the desirability of district and ward boundaries which are readily identifiable;
(ii) a townland shall not be included partly in one district or ward and partly in another, except it be unavoidable;
(iii) a district shall not be wholly or substantially severed by, nor encompassed within the boundary of another district; and further in determining the number and boundaries of wards that —

(iv) regard shall be had to the size, population and physical diversity of the district;
(v) the desirability of proper representation of the rural and urban electorates within the district;
(vi) within each district the number of electors in each ward shall as far as reasonably practicable be substantially the same.

It also provided that the number of wards in each district shall be 15 except that this number may be increased to not more than 25 having regard to either of the rules outlined in para 1(iv) or (v) above, or, having regard to both such rules, to not more than 30. In the City of Belfast the number of wards shall be not less than 40 nor more than 60.

It will be appreciated that the application of these rules put out of reach any endeavour to secure broad equivalence between ward electorates in districts generally or even in neighbouring districts. It will also be seen that the review had to be conducted upon the historically accepted townland basis, which country people know and with which they identify. That had been the framework for the 1972 boundaries and, therefore, for the registers of local electors as they stood at 31 October 1982 upon which the calculations as to electorates had to be made.

THE STATUTORY BASIS

2. The statutory procedure required the review to move forward in four stages —

(i) a public announcement that the Commissioner had commenced his task and inviting proposals from councils, political parties, associations, organisations and individual members of the public;
(ii) the publication of provisional recommendations about which representations or objections in writing might be made and which might lead to public hearings into the provisional recommendations;
(iii) after consideration of all representations made in writing or at public hearings, the publication of revised recommendations, with a further opportunity for representations concerning such revisions, and in respect of which the Commissioner had discretion to direct further public hearings;
(iv) a final stage in which the Commissioner is required to submit his report containing recommendations to Government.

At the outset I decided to break new ground by submitting, if it proved practicable, the recommendations in my final report in a form which consisted of maps showing districts and wards with their names and boundaries and accompanied by an ancillary text. In 1972 the text was definitive and the maps ancillary, but in this review I considered that it would be of greater assistance to those concerned to be able to go straight to the map for the information required.

I was encouraged in this by the consideration that the Order giving effect with or without modifications to the recommendations could be a simple instrument with a set of "deposit" maps.

THE COURSE OF THE REVIEW

3. The earlier stages of the review were set out in the forewords to my provisional and revised recommendations reproduced in pages 117-131, and when read together with the statistical information showing the demographic changes which has occurred since 1972, expose the reasons why a complete and exhaustive review of the composition of each ward in every district has been carried out.

I think it necessary to explain that the review, which I had expected might be brought to its final stage in January 1984, has been drawn out by three factors —

(i) people particularly the political parties did not fully use the opportunity of presenting proposals in answer to the invitation given at the first stage in November 1982;
(ii) the opportunity offered in May 1983 of making representations regarding the provisional recommendations resulted largely in generalised objections particularly from political parties, and which in some cases were based upon speculation regarding the grouping of wards into electoral areas under the P.R. system. But those representations often indicated a need to enquire further whether there might be grounds for improving my provisional boundary lines within the principles laid down by the statutory rules;

This led to 19 public hearings at the provisional stage, and at those hearings political associations for the first time exposed arguments for what in substance were patterns of alternative wards for a number of districts. This late presentation of proposals for alternative wards was continued into the revised stage;

(iii) I considered it my duty to consider all of this late material in the detail which it involved, and this required not only consideration of ward identities, but computation of the exact electorates which would result from adopting an alternative proposal.

Many of the alternative proposals were in rural localities where the identification of the electorate within a townland had been confused by the use of a "manufactured" street or road addresses introduced to suit Post Office needs and which ignored the townland name.

The relevant legislation allowed the exclusive use of such addresses in the compilation of the electoral register.

This resulted in a considerable body of entries in the 1982 electoral register which used only the Post Office address. Every such address had to be identified and related to the relevant townland so that the number of electors in each townland could be calculated before the overall electorate for a ward could be discovered.

ADDITIONAL PUBLIC HEARINGS

4. I wish to draw attention to particular issues which arose at five public hearings held following publication of my revised recommendations as I consider that the advocates of proposals which I have not accepted are entitled to have some explanation of the reasons behind my final recommendations and also so that the public generally may be able to understand the issues which I had to decide. I have set out these matters in a separate schedule to this report. These additional hearings concerned issues relating to the districts of Antrim/Newtownabbey, Belfast/North Down, Banbridge, Fermanagh and Moyle.

There was also a sixth additional hearing, namely a second hearing in Dungannon, at which the sole issue was whether the Unionist desire to obtain the name "Newmills" for the ward which included the village of Newmills and part of Coalisland should prevail against the non-Unionist parties contention that "Coalisland West" would be more representative of the ward identities.

The revised recommendation was for the compound name of "Coalisland West and Newmills". After alternative names had been canvassed at the hearing I decided that the differences of opinion could not be reconciled and that no real alternative to the compound name presented itself.

THE RESULT OF THE REVIEW

5. After considering all the proposals, representations, objections and arguments presented including those made at all the public hearings, I found that there was no real demand from any source, other than one or two almost casual proposals, for a change in the number of districts from 26, and I was not disposed to speculate whether the creation of additional districts or the amalgamation or reconstruction of districts could result in better representation, but at the next review further demographic movements may perhaps make such changes desirable.

The result of the review is to recommend confirmation of the number of districts at the existing level of 26, and to increase the number of wards and therefore the number of councillors from 526 to 566. The table on pages 10 and 11 shows the districts arranged in ascending numbers of electorates.

STAFF

6. The review, involving assessment of a large number of written representations and 25 public hearings was carried out by a small technical staff, whose wholehearted dedication to the exercise at times involved considerable sacrifice of their private interests. The names of the Commission's staff are recorded on page 9.

The Commission was extremely fortunate in having Joyce McCormick to lead the Planning team which consisted of Mr Hogg and two excellent planning technicians. Their highly skilled and energetic handling of the mass of detailed material at each stage of the review made good the want of numbers on the planning side.

And thanks to the good will of the Commissioner of Valuation I was able to obtain on a temporary basis additional technically qualified staff, two Mappers, whose assistance was invaluable in preparing the provisional and later the revised recommendations.

The Office Manager and the members of the office staff all willingly worked on the checking and verification of the detailed work at each stage especially the laborious and time consuming task of completing the ancillary text and in preparing material for public display.

Every member of the staff has made a contribution beyond the strict demarcation line of their ordinary duties.

ASSESSORS

7. The Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for Northern Ireland, the Commissioner of Valuation and the Chief Electoral Officer have co-operated willingly in the preparation of the statistical information involved. The Chief Ordnance Survey Officer and his staff have worked under pressure to produce the material from which the maps are printed, and this involved some interference with the normal every day work of the Survey Office which has been accepted without complaint. The Assistant Survey Officer, Mr W Jackson, and all the staff members intimately concerned have been unfailingly helpful.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS

8. The Assistant Commissioners, Mr K J Donaghy, OBE, Mr S F R Martin, CB, and Mr J P McGrath, all played an active part in interpreting and testing the evidence presented at the public hearings and their advice as to the weight to be given to conflicting views has been of great value.

I think that it should be made a matter of record that after each public hearing they were able to agree among themselves how to advise me and that in no case was I unable to accept what they advised as the best conclusion in the circumstances.

I am greatly indebted to them for making what was difficult easier to resolve.

REPORTERS APPOINTED TO THE PUBLIC HEARINGS

9. The Department of the Environment appointed officers to record the evidence and procedure at the hearings and, though none of them had any previous experience of this work, their transcripts provide a valuable public record of the proceedings.

CONCLUSION

10. I have one other special acknowledgement which I have to make and which gives me great pleasure to record. The whole Commission would join with me in acknowledging the outstanding contribution to the overall planning and efficient progress of the exercise made by its Secretary, Mr Paddy McIlroy. His cheerful but firm sense of priorities and infectious enthusiasm for making what seemed good enough a great deal better inspired us all, and was coupled with genuine consideration for his staff and their individual personal lives. The Commission could not have had a more human and understanding director.

SCHEDULE TO REPORT

ANTRIM/NEWTOWNABBEY DISTRICT BOUNDARY

The definition of the district boundary gave rise to a difference of opinion between the neighbouring Borough Councils.

The 1972 boundary line, if left unchanged, would divide the Kilbride village area electorate between the two Districts, and with 75 electors in Kilbride townland, and 289 in the village, a majority of these electors would remain in Antrim District. There was almost complete agreement that the entire electorate of 364 should be in a single district, and the central issue was whether the Commission was correct in siting all the 364 electors in Newtownabbey and thus bring an otherwise low electorate in Doagh ward within the range 1850-2261 required for a ward in that District.

Antrim Council countered this recommendation by proposing (inter alia) the movement of much of the Doagh ward (including the Kilbride area) into Antrim District.

The issue was very clearly and well presented, and it seemed that a large number of the Kilbride electorate was satisfied with the services rendered by the Antrim Council and its Councillors, and were apprehensive about the impact of higher rates being payable in the Newtownabbey District.

The Commissioner and all three Assistant Commissioners carried out inspections of the area at the time of the first public hearing. The Commissioner again inspected the area before the second public hearing, and after that hearing he overflew the entire region and the area in dispute paying particular attention to the line of the Doagh river and its watershed.

The Commissioner's decision accords with the advice received from each of the Assistant Commissioners, and he is firmly of the view that the geographical situation of the Kilbride area on the side of the hill overlooking the Ballyclare-Doagh valley floor, the road connections and the social and community links of the electors concerned lie with Doagh rather than Templepatrick or Antrim town.

BANBRIDGE DISTRICT

At the public hearing on 7 November 1983 Banbridge Council made strong representations against the number of wards for the district being held at 15 especially at the expense of losing an eastern rural ward in order to create a new urban ward. Proposals then made in very general terms involved an extra mixed urban/rural ward and an additional rural eastern ward which would result in an average ward electorate of 1279 within the 1150-1406 range.

This proposal if adopted would have given the District two additional wards though between 1972 and 1982 the electorate had increased by only 500 electors overall which was made up by an increase of some 2,000 in urban wards and a fall of 1,500 in rural wards. But nevertheless, as the Council, following the first hearing, was still unanimous in its resistance to the 15 wards recommended and was willing to work out and submit a map with detailed enumeration of the electorates for its proposed wards, the Commissioner decided to allow the Council's proposals to be explained and examined at a further public hearing.

That hearing took place on 14 March 1984 in Banbridge, and after the Council had been given further time to "iron out" and extend the detail of several sections of boundaries suggested for wards, the Commission inspected what was proposed. Several such proposed boundaries seemed indefinite, to divide developed housing areas or to combine within one ward characteristics which were not linked by natural or community factors.

Throughout the examination of the objections to the Commission's recommendations, the Commissioner gave great weight to the fact that the Council was unanimous in its opposition and its belief in the value of its own proposed boundaries. The Commission did not find, however, that the proposed ward boundaries for urban wards of Banbridge had proper regard to the need for clear physical definition between wards and to the distinction between the respective interests of urban and rural electorates. Apart from these factors he also had some reservations regarding the adjustments which had been made between communities to achieve the necessary degree of broad equivalence, and in all the circumstances was compelled to reject the late counter proposals as less than fully acceptable.

BELFAST AND DISTRICT BOUNDARY WITH NORTH DOWN

Most of the representations made at the two public hearings were accommodated in some degree except a difference of opinion as regards the Belfast/North Down district boundary in the Knocknagoney area, and the SDLP proposals for an additional ward in West Belfast of which particulars were received on 14 February 1984.

1. The Knocknagoney area has finally been divided by a district boundary line which leaves the public housing estate opening off the Knocknagoney Road, together with the public housing on the opposite side of that road, within the City boundary, but treats the private development at Cedar Grove, to which access is only available from the Old Holywood Road, as part of Loughview ward, in North Down.

2. The SDLP's detailed proposals, though submitted late in the day, were closely examined. The electorates for the proposed 11 wards had to be worked out in greater detail to eliminate electors not qualified to vote in local government elections or not on the register in October 1982. This exercise showed up two wards with electorates below 4,000 and two wards with electorates of under, 4,050 as compared with the ward average of 4,444 for the City as a whole. Apart from this, not all the ward boundaries proposed by the SDLP were well enough defined to be adopted and in this respect also the case for an additional ward was not sufficiently made out, though other parts of the proposals made were helpful and have been accepted.

MOYLE

Since 1972 Moyle District has had 16 wards, with Rathlin as a separate ward, and the lowest average electorate in the Province. At the provisional stage the number of wards recommended was reduced to 15 (including Rathlin as a ward) and this number of wards was maintained in the revised recommendations against the opinion of the Council which desired the retention of 16 wards with Rathlin remaining a ward though the electorate was down to 84.

On the other hand, the local Unionist Association and a Member of Parliament who is also an Assembly member for North Antrim Constituency, took the view that the District should consist of 15 wards, but that an additional ward in the west should replace Rathlin.

In the ten years since 1972 the electorates of the eastern wards remained fairly constant, but the rural wards to the west of Ballycastle lost electors to the urbanised wards of Ballycastle and less so to Bushmills.

At the public hearings in other Districts, the low electorates in Moyle and the acceptance of Rathlin as a separate ward were criticised and made the basis of demands for reduction in the levels of electorates elsewhere.

At the second public hearing on 5 March 1984 the case for 16 wards, keeping Rathlin as a ward, was again urged, but by this time the cases presented at several hearings elsewhere helped to persuade the Commission that the low electorates in Moyle resulting from 16 wards and the continuation of Rathlin as a separate ward were anomolies which needed more justification now than previously. Especially as Rathlin has never since 1972 had a Councillor from the Island, and at the hearings everyone agreed that the interests of Rathlin had been well cared for by all the councillors elected for the group of which Rathlin has formed a part under the P.R. system.

The Commissioner, therefore, has decided that 15 wards is the desirable pattern for Moyle and that, as Rathlin has so few electors, it should be included within a mainland ward. A minimum of 15 wards then would require an additional ward to make up the loss of Rathlin, and this makes it possible to maintain the number of western wards much as they were during the pre-1982 period. This then delivers a pattern of three eastern Glens, five largely urban wards for Ballycastle plus one in Bushmills, and six mainly rural wards in the hinterland of the towns.

The degree of broad equivalence between the electorates is improved, with rather larger electorates than in 1972. The electorates of two of the eastern Glens are at the top of the range as the people in each valley have a distinct and separate identity which calls for each community being contained within a single ward.

FERMANAGH

Since 1973, Fermanagh has had 20 wards and the provisional recommendations increased this number to 22 wards.

At the public hearing on 21 October 1983 the general case of unrepresentation was made during the hearing in a sufficient context for the Commissioner to permit the proposition to be clothed by the submission of detailed proposals with identifiable ward boundaries.

When received in February 1984 the detailed representations made by non-Unionist parties proposed 27 wards. These were closely examined as regards the factors said to link groups of electors into reasonably distinct communities, and as regards the balance of electoral equivalence achieved between wards. Objection was made to any consideration of such material on the grounds that the purpose of the public hearing had been to test the Commissioner's own recommendations and not to elicit or debate alternative ward patterns which were politically motivated, and which were not based on the principles expressed by the Commissioner in the foreword to the provisional recommendations.

The Commissioner decided to revise his provisional recommendations on the principles expressed by himself and which required the criteria of social and economic factors in relation to community identities to be applied and which excluded political considerations.

On this basis his revised recommendations proposed an additional ward, making 23, and which he named Kesh and Lisnarrick. And he decided to hold a further public hearing at which the differences of opinion in the District as regards the extra ward could be fully examined, and so that certain other revisions, which he had made so as to achieve more balanced ward electorates, might be considered.

At the second public hearing on 7 March 1984 the Unionist case against the new Kesh and Lisnarrick ward was supported by a massive petition signed by 853 people, and by the District Council on the casting vote of the Chairman.

The wording of the petition was "we the voters strongly object to the proposal to transfer us to the ward of Kesh and Lisnarrick. We are closely connected with the centre of Irvinestown or Ballinamallard by virtue of churches, schools etc".

The petition was analysed by the Commission to discover the townlands in which the signatories lived and the analysis showed —

(i) 437, that is over half of the signatories, lived closer to Ederny or Lack than to Kesh and would not be transferred to a new Kesh and Lisnarrick ward;
(ii) 333 had closer physical links with Irvinestown than Kesh but lived well outside the latter town and in an area well served by roads going north and south of Enniskillen to Kesh;
(iii) 83 lived close to Ballinamallard.

At the second hearing, however, it became plain that the real objection of the Unionist parties and their supporters was to the creation of a twenty third ward as well as being especially opposed to the inclusion of Belleek town (with 462 electors) in the pattern of wards north and east of Lower Lough Erne which made revision of all those wards necessary.

Each of the conflicting views concerning a twenty third ward reflected opinions as regards the political consequences of a new Kesh and Lisnarrick ward.

After taking the opinions of the Assistant Commissioners concerned, the Commissioner decided that he should leave the position of Belleek as part of the ward north of Lower Lough Erne, as it has been since 1972, and this made inevitable the creation of a new ward east of the Lough. The new ward of Kesh and Lisnarrick is no larger or more difficult to service because of its shape and area than other Fermanagh wards and is better served by roads than several other wards.

[1] Supplied by Chief Survey Officer for Northern Ireland.

[2] Supplied by the Registrar General for Births, Marriages and Deaths for NI. (These figures are the number of usually resident persons enumerated in the 1981 Census of Population (NI) plus the estimated population effect of non-enumerated households. The latter were revisions made in July 1983 by an inter-departmental working group set up to review the estimates of non-enumeration in the 1981 Census of Population).

[3] As at March 1983, supplied by Rating Division, Department of the Environment (NI).

[4] As at March 1983, supplied by the Commissioner of Valuation.

[5] As per Register of Local Electors as at 31 October 1982.

Modifications Made to Revised Recommendations

The following modifications have been made to the revised recommendations of 18 January 1984 and have been incorporated in the maps of the final recommendations and the ancillary texts for districts.

1. DERRY LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

   a. The name of the district has been changed to Derry.

   b. The boundary between Creggan Central ward and Crevagh and Springtown ward has been altered at the northern end of Creggan Central ward. No electors are affected.

   c. The boundary between Crevagh and Springtown ward and Pennyburn ward has been altered at the north-west corner of Pennyburn ward. As a consequence, some electors are transferred from Crevagh and Springtown ward to Pennyburn ward.

   d. The townland of Currynierin has been transferred from Faughan ward to Corrody ward. A few electors are affected.

   e. The district boundary linking Culmore ward and Enagh ward has been shown on Sheet 1. No electors are affected.

2. LIMAVADY LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

   The ward of Carran has been renamed Enagh.

3. COLERAINE LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

   The district boundary linking Strand ward and Castlerock ward has been shown on Sheet 1. No electors are affected.

4. BALLYMONEY LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

   The boundary between Seacon ward and The Vow ward has been corrected on the inset map of Ballymoney town, to comply with the district map.

5. MOYLE LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

   a. Rathlin Island (previously recommended as a ward on its own) has been incorporated into Bonamargy ward. Electors resident on Rathlin Island are affected by the change.

   b. Bonamargy ward has been renamed Bonamargy and Rathlin.

   c. The townlands of Broughanlea and Drumahaman have been transferred to Glenshesk ward from Bonamargy and Rathlin ward. Some electors are affected.

   d. An additional ward named Moss-Side and Moyarget has been created in the west of the district with the consequence that the boundaries and electorates of the 5 wards of Bushmills, Ballylough, Dunseverick, Carnmoon and Moss-Side and Armoy have been altered.

   e. Carnmoon and Moss-Side ward has been renamed Carnmoon.

6. LARNE LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISTRICT

REVIEW OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOUNDARIES
UNDER LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT (NI) 1972

FOREWORD TO PROVISIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS

INTRODUCTION

1. The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland appointed the Local Government Boundaries Commissioner on 28 October 1982 under Section 50(1) of the Local Government Act (NI) 1972 "to review the number, boundaries and names of the districts and the number, boundaries and names of the wards into which each district is divided". There are at present 26 local government districts comprising 526 wards which were established by the Local Government (Boundaries) (NI) Order 1972.

2. The first stages of the review are now complete and the Commissioner is publishing today the PROVISIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS for making the pattern of local government districts and wards for Northern Ireland more representative.

3. The recommendations for Northern Ireland as a whole are presented in the form of 49 maps. These maps with their accompanying texts define the boundaries, and indicate the names for districts and their wards. They also show existing districts and ward boundaries and their respective names, so that the changes proposed can be examined readily.

DISPLAY OF MAPS

4. All 49 maps are being exhibited at Parliament Buildings, Stormont (not open generally to the public); the Housing Advice Centre, Adelaide Street, Belfast; and the Guildhall, Londonderry. In addition, displays of the maps of individual districts are being exhibited in about 100 Town Halls, Council Offices and Libraries throughout the Province. Details of the central and local displays have already been published in the press.

PUBLIC PARTICIPATION IN THE REVISION OF BOUNDARIES

5. The purpose of the boundary revision is to reflect the massive shifts of population which have taken place since 1972 and to group electors into districts and wards which will lay the basis for better representation of people now linked by the particular and differing geographical, social and economic circumstances which give them group identities.

   The 1972 Act requires the Commissioner to base his recommendations upon the register of local electors in force when he commenced his task on 1 November 1982.

6. The task does not include grouping the wards into electoral areas for the purpose of any election whether for local or central government, but is confined to creating, as best as he can, wards which people can recognise as being coherent units deserving separate and distinct representation reflecting differences in interest, and which are grouped together with other wards into the district which will provide them with the services and facilities of local government.

7. In this task the Commissioner regards the opinion of the public affected by his recommendations as being of primary importance, and essential for supplying him with the information needed to produce what will be acceptable in the general sense.

8. To this end, a notice dated 1 November 1982 was published in 44 Belfast and local newspapers inviting proposals regarding the review which was to be carried out. On the same date over 200 letters were sent to district councils, government and public departments, political and trade associations, and Members of the Westminster and European Parliaments, and of the Northern Ireland Assembly and all the Boards in Northern Ireland providing social and public services to invite such proposals and emphasising the importance of widespread public participation in the revision exercise.

9. In response to this invitation, over 70 submissions were received, including many proposals covering more than one district and its wards and giving detailed and closely worked out statistical and general data. All of these proposals have been closely considered and those which were not contentious or incompletely presented will be found to have played a part in the provisional recommendations.

PROPOSALS REGARDING ELECTORAL AREAS

10. Some proposals went beyond what was relevant to the review by introducing arguments for the alteration of electoral areas, and the grouping of wards to make up such areas. These considerations have been left aside as the Commissioner is bound by statutory provisions in the 1972 Act regarding the function which he is to execute.

THE STATUTORY BASIS OF THE REVISION

11. The provisional recommendations have been framed upon the principles embodied in the 1972 Act and of which the following deserved particular attention:-

(1) it shall be taken that each ward shall return one member to the council of the district in which it is situated;

(2) within each district there shall be, as far as reasonably practicable, substantially the same number of local electors in each ward. It should be noted that with 26 or so districts, each with a varying number of electors, there cannot be substantially the same number of electors in every ward in every district when the total district electorates are widely different. But, it will be found that the provisional recommendations endeavour to create ward electorates in adjoining districts (apart from Belfast) which are not widely disparate, while preserving, as far as practicable, local identities;

(3) townlands are divided only in exceptional circumstances. In urban areas, townland boundaries have in many places been rendered obsolete as development spread and, generally speaking, the electoral registers for urban areas have ceased to place electors by reference to their particular townlands. And even in rural areas the Post Office has paid little or no regard to the townland basis, or to townland addresses, in carrying on and extending their public service.

The provisional recommendations seek, as far as may be, to uphold the principle that the location of a dwelling is properly described by reference to its townland, except in urban development where townland boundaries have been lost in mass housing or other forms of development crossing townland boundaries;

(4) the distinction between urban and rural sections of the electorate with their differing needs for the services which local government can provide has been taken into account, but in most districts the requirement of broad equivalence in the number of electors per ward has resulted in one or more wards having an electorate which is partly urban and partly rural;

(5) the application of the statutory basis for the revision in the circumstances which have produced an increase of some 20,000 in the total electorate of the Province, but a decrease of 65,000 in the electorate of Belfast, has resulted in provisional recommendations for relatively small changes in the boundaries of 4 districts, but a net increase of 39 wards, while allowing for the same total of 26 districts as in 1972.

The provisional recommendations in respect of the number of districts and their component wards as compared with the prevailing 1972 pattern are shown in the Appendix.

RELATIONSHIP OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT TO PARLIAMENTARY BOUNDARIES

12. Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies and their respective electoral lists are based upon the local government boundaries established in 1972. Any revision of district and ward boundaries arising from the present review is bound to result in the relationship of those constituencies and their respective lists being critically affected in certain cases. It will be obvious that demographic movements have resulted in changes which, in some instances, now require district or ward boundary changes which will breach the Parliamentary boundaries.

The element of 'timelag' between the recommendations of different Boundary Commissions guarantees this result.

A perfect system would involve some contemporaneous change in both local government and Parliamentary boundaries, and their electoral areas, but the Commissioner cannot resolve this situation, and accordingly has endeavoured to hold fast to the statutory basis for his recommendations and now proposes changes which breach Parliamentary boundaries only where these should clearly produce the basis for representation of the local electors affected by such changes.

THE NEXT STAGE — REPRESENTATIONS AND OBJECTIONS TO THE PROVISIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS

13. The provisional maps and their associated texts will remain on display for one month from 20 May 1983.

14. Any individual or group of persons, public or private, may submit representations in writing with respect to what has been provisionally recommended and the Commissioner hopes that any objection will explain the reasoning behind it. Any revision of a ward boundary necessarily involves neighbouring wards and may involve a district boundary, so it is important that a representation, which would affect the balance in the equivalence of electors as between wards, should be explained sufficiently to indicate what consequential changes are proposed in neighbouring wards.

15. Representations and objections regarding the provisional recommendations should be made in writing not later than Monday, 20 June 1983.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

16. After the period for the receipt of objections has elapsed the Commissioner may cause a public hearing to be held in the district

> "in respect of the boundary and name of the district and the number, boundaries and names of the wards within the district...", and where the Commissioner receives representations objecting to the recommendations he has provisionally determined to make:-

> "(a) from the council of the district, or
> (b) from not less than 100 local electors registered by virtue of a qualifying address in the district"

he is statutorily required to hold a public hearing in the district.

17. As some few proposals submitted have not been carried into the provisional recommendations, either on account of a conflict of views or insufficiency of the supporting reasons, and, so that he may be better informed of the merit of those proposals, the Commissioner is anxious to test public opinion and to consider holding public hearings in respect of issues raised by such proposals:-

(1)(a) whether the shoreline of the Sandy Bay area of Lough Neagh should be within the district of Antrim; and

(2) whether the area west of Squires Hill is properly included in Antrim district;

(3) whether the townlands of County Armagh which have been in Dungannon district since 1972 should be removed into Armagh, and what consequential changes in both Dungannon and Armagh districts would be acceptable to electors affected thereby;

(4)(a) whether the 1972 boundaries between Belfast and Castlereagh should be maintained; and

(b) whether the boundaries between Castlereagh and Belfast are sufficiently defined;

(5) whether the continued inclusion of Rathfriland in Newry and Mourne district has the support of the general electorate in that district, and of the Banbridge district electorate;

(6) whether Rathlin should continue to be a separate ward or should be incorporated within a mainland ward of the Moyle district;

(7) whether the boundaries between Newtownabbey and Antrim districts, as recommended, are generally acceptable to the electorates in these districts.

18 Notices of public hearings will be published in the press in good time to inform interested parties of the dates and venues of hearings. However, to enable all representations and objections submitted to be thoroughly considered beforehand and arrangements made for hearings, the Commissioner does not intend to commence the series of hearings until September 1983.

19. Where possible, the public hearings will be held in a court house in the district concerned.

20. The hearings will not have the character of litigation and persons wishing to present material facts and opinions should not be deterred from taking part in a public hearing by the idea that the proceedings will be excessively formal.

21. The fact that no representation has been made in writing will not necessarily preclude any person from taking part in the hearing in respect of issues which have been raised by a representation or objection duly made by another party.

REVISION OF PROVISIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS

22. After taking into consideration the representations submitted in writing or made at public hearings, the Commissioner may revise the provisional recommendations. Where he determines to do so, he shall publish a notice to specify the places and times where the revised recommendations may be inspected. It is the Commissioner's intention to publish the revised recommendations in the same form as the provisional recommendations and to display the revised maps and texts for inspection throughout the Province in the same manner as the provisional recommendations were displayed.

Where the Commissioner determines that the provisional recommendations for a particular district should not be altered he is not obliged to publish a notice to that effect but will do so. The Commissioner will entertain any further representation regarding his revised recommendations within a period which will be published in the notice announcing the publication of the revised recommendations.

23. The Commissioner is not required to hold a public hearing following any representation he may receive with respect to the revised recommendations, but has power to do so if he regards this to be necessary to obtain further information and assistance. However, such hearings would relate only to the revisions made and would not constitute a re-hearing of the reasoning already considered.

It is most important, therefore, that the public should use to the full the opportunity of making representations or objections regarding the provisional recommendations and of appearing at public hearings in respect of the provisional recommendations.

FINAL RECOMMENDATIONS

24. After he has considered all written representations and objections and those made at public hearings following the publication of the revised recommendations, the Commissioner is required to submit to the Secretary of State, under Section 50(4) of the 1972 Act, a report of his final recommendations regarding alterations in the number, boundaries or names of any districts or wards.

25. Thereafter, the report of the final recommendations must be laid before Parliament together with the draft of an Order to give effect, whether with or without modifications, to the recommendations.

GENERAL

26. A schedule of general information concerning area, population, rateable value, the number of wards prevailing and recommended, etc, is given in the Appendix.

UNDER LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT (NI) 1972

FOREWORD TO REVISED RECOMMENDATIONS

THE PROVISIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The provisional recommendations were published on 20 May 1983 after consideration of the 70 proposals received as a result of the notice of 1 November 1982 published in 44 Belfast and local newspapers and the 200 odd letters sent to district councils, government and public departments, political and trade associations, members of the Westminster and European Parliaments, and of the Northern Ireland Assembly, inviting such proposals.

   The notices published in the Belfast and local newspapers announcing the publication of the provisional recommendations on 20 May stated that the recommendations for Northern Ireland as a whole were being exhibited at Parliament Buildings, Stomont; the Housing Advice Centre, Belfast; and the Guildhall, Londonderry. They also gave particulars of the places where the recommendations for each individual district might be inspected during the period of one month from 20 May and indicated that any representations or objections regarding the recommendations should be made in writing not later than 20 June 1983.

   The Commissioner also gave notice that he would consider holding a public hearing in respect of certain specific issues upon which he wished to be better informed and which were set out in paragraph 17 of the Foreword to the provisional recommendations.

2. The provisional recommendations were contained in 49 maps which showed both the existing and the provisionally recommended ward and district boundaries, with their respective names.

   The maps expressed the definitive recommendations, as it was intended when the provisional recommendations came to be revised, and later when final recommendations have to be made, that the recommendations should be in the form of maps setting out the boundaries and names for districts and their wards. To facilitate identification of the townlands, streets etc. within each ward, an ancillary text has been added for ease of reference.

THE REPRESENTATIONS AND OBJECTIONS

3. Representations and objections in writing, many of a composite nature, were received in respect of the provisional recommendations from a total of 74 sources including councils, elected representatives and political parties, individuals and other bodies, and all such representations have been taken into account in making the revised recommendations.

   The Commissioner decided to hold public hearings within 19 districts, that is in all but 7 districts, namely Ards, Ballymoney, Carrickfergus, Larne, Londonderry, Newry and Mourne and Strabane. The hearings covered not only matters which had been represented to him, but also issues upon which he required assistance from or on behalf of the electors who were affected by his provisional recommendations.

   All hearings were advertised in the Belfast and local newspapers and were held between 31 August and 17 November 1983 (inclusive).

   Every representation or objection received was acknowledged and where it was made in general terms, or lacked sufficient particulars to define the subject matter fully, the person or body concerned was given the opportunity to amplify that representation; and where a public hearing was to be held the need for early submission of the full particulars of what was to be represented at that hearing was explained.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS

4. The Commissioner was assisted throughout the public hearings by three Assistant Commissioners, namely Mr S F R Martin, Mr K J Donaghy and Mr J P McGrath who sat with him in turn, and who in his absence conducted the hearings for Ballymena, Moyle and North Down. The function of the Assistant Commissioners was to assess the content and weight of the representations made, and to exercise independent judgement so as to advise the Commissioner whether or not to revise what he had provisionally recommended.

   It must be recorded that in considering the representations the Assistant Commissioners played an active and important role; and in making the revised recommendations now published, there is no revision recommended, which does not have the support of the Assistant Commissioners.

THE PUBLIC HEARINGS

5. One matter requires special mention. The public notices and the Foreword to the provisional recommendations required that any representation or objection regarding what was recommended provisionally should be made in writing not later than Monday, 20 June 1983.

Paragraph 21 of the Foreword also stated that "The fact that no representation has been made in writing will not necessarily preclude any person from taking part in the hearing in respect of issues which have been raised by a representation or objection duly made by another party".

The intention of this paragraph was to convey the general message that not only what the Commissioner had provisionally recommended would be considered at the relevant public hearing but also that every representation or objection "duly made", that is to say in writing by 20 June, could be tested at the hearing by anyone interested in the issues raised thereby.

Nevertheless at several public hearings persons on behalf of associations with political objects appeared and made verbal representations supported by maps or texts of townlands and streets proposing alternative patterns for wards within the relevant district, without having given notice in writing of any such intention either by 20 June or at any time before appearing at the public hearing.

Each of these representations purported to object to the provisional recommendations for the district by proposing substantive changes which were in such general terms that the exact boundaries of the wards proposed and the precise electorates which would result from the alternative pattern were left uncertain.

The general proposition made in most of these cases was that the number of wards provisionally recommended would result in under-representation for rural areas and, comparing one district with another, that there was no uniformity as to the electorates in rural areas. It was also said that there was a disparity between the rural and urban electorates in many districts. The degree of under-representation alleged was generally by one or possibly two wards, except in Fermanagh where an increase of 6 or 7 additional wards over the existing 20 was sought by several political bodies.

Objection by persons appearing was taken to the consideration of these late alternative proposals on the grounds that:—

(1) the public hearings were for the purpose of examining the provisional recommendations, and not alternative patterns for wards;
(2) the alternative patterns were not sufficiently precise to allow full examination at the public hearing;
(3) there was insufficient opportunity for parties and persons opposing an alternative pattern to study and resist what was proposed; and that
(4) the Commissioner had no statutory power to consider such alternative proposals at the stage of a public hearing which was to consider his own provisional recommendations.

Notwithstanding the late submission at the public hearings of what constituted substantive proposals for ward changes and which were incompletely worked out as regards the definition of ward boundaries and their electorates within the particular district, the Commissioner decided to examine each of these proposals as a means of testing the validity of his own provisional recommendations, and has done so in each case. This involved working out, as best could be done, more exact boundaries and electorates from proposals which were inexact and therefore to some extent speculative.

In the event, he is firmly of the view that the case for under-representation has not been made out, as an examination of the Schedule to the Foreword will show. Inter alia, the Schedule displays in ascending order the electorates under the revised recommendations for districts and their electorates, and also the average electorate in the "middle 14 districts" which for this purpose leaves out of account the smaller and larger districts.

The Schedule is included for those who wish to make such comparisons, but the Commissioner's approach to the problem has not been to start from such simple arithmetical comparisons, but instead has been to consider how many distinct urban, village or rural communities are present within a particular boundary for a particular district, and then to consider how to achieve a ward pattern which would allow proper representation for those communities within the requirement of broadly equivalent electorates. And whether this approach, which is based on social and demographic factors, is successful can only be judged by its results, and though too much should not be read out of the fact, it is not insignificant that, before the public hearings commenced, no Council had said that the 1972 pattern for its wards, and their electorates, had proved inadequate for proper representation over the last 10 years, and a number of Councils with largely rural electorates wanted no increase in the number of wards.

ELECTORAL EQUIVALENCE

6. The difficulty of creating wards which have recognisable local identities while maintaining the principle of equivalent electorates has been largely met by allowing a tolerance of 10% over or under the average district electorates and this degree of tolerance has only been departed from in a few cases where the Council, or a preponderence of local feeling, has indicated willingness to accept a ward electorate above or below this tolerance.

Many representations were based on counting electorates as they appear in the 1983 Register, but the 1972 Act requires the Commissioner to base his recommendations upon the register of local electors in force when he commenced his task on 1 November 1982.

ELECTORAL AREAS

7. The misconception regarding the Commissioner's statutory function was carried into the representations and into the submissions made at the public hearings, so that in many cases the express or implied basis for proposing the rejection or alteration of the provisional recommendations was the expectation that the grouping of wards into electoral areas could thereby be influenced.

No doubt changes in the composition of wards may be viewed by political interests according to how wards may be grouped into electoral areas for the purpose of proportional representation, but this is a later, and different exercise from that with which the Commissioner is charged. He has made it plain that his review was not directed to the creation of electoral areas, and that his aim was the creation of wards which are coherent social units with electorates broadly equivalent within each district as far as geographical and local identities permitted, and further that he was not advised as to the form which such electoral groupings might take.

Since the revised maps were completed for printing, the District Electoral Areas Commissioner Order has been laid before Parliament on 15 December 1983 and, if approved, it will provide the means by which the wards recommended by the Local Government Boundaries Commissioner can be grouped for electoral purposes and will establish the procedures under which representations may be made in respect of the proposed groupings.

THE REVISED RECOMMENDATIONS

8. The revised recommendations for Northern Ireland as a whole are presented in the form of 52 maps. They show where the district and ward boundaries depart from the provisional recommendations, although, where ward names have been revised the provisionally recommended names are not indicated.

The revised recommendations provide for several alterations in district boundaries which when added to earlier changes proposed at the provisional stage would have the effect of altering the present boundaries of 9 districts.

PARLIAMENTARY BOUNDARIES

9. Attention was directed in the Foreword to the provisional recommendations to the circumstances that the Commissioner's final recommendations, with or without modifications, will not, when enacted, affect either Parliamentary or Assembly constituencies as these boundaries under existing legislation are based upon the local government districts and their wards as constituted by the Local Government (Boundaries) Order (NI) 1972. It was pointed out at the public hearings by many persons of differing political views that this results in confusing electors partly because they may have to go to different polling stations for different elections but more importantly because neighbours with common social problems within the same local government district will have to resort to different Assembly and Parliamentary members where local government boundaries are not coincident with Assembly and Parliamentary constituencies. Coincidence between boundaries for constituencies at different levels of government would seem to have obvious advantages for the electorate, but the statutory powers given to the Commissioner cannot be applied to this end, and the most that he can do in making his revised recommendations is to propose changes in local government boundaries which breach other constituency boundaries only where the case for such change is strongly made out on social and demographic grounds. Though it will be found that there are quite a substantial number of such revisions recommended which have this effect, many involve only relatively small numbers of electors.

THE NEXT STAGE

10. The notices already published in the Belfast and local press indicate where the revised recommendations for Northern Ireland as a whole and for individual districts are being displayed, and also state that representations may be made in writing regarding the revised recommendations not later than Friday, 17 February 1984. The Commissioner wishes to emphasise that they must be received by this date.

In addition to the public notices, over 200 letters have been sent to district councils, government and public departments, political parties and members of the Westminster and European Parliaments and of the Northern Ireland Assembly. These letters have stressed that representations proposing a change in any boundary should give particular and reasonable definition of what is proposed and indicate what change would result in the electorates affected.

The Commissioner is not obliged to hold any public hearing following representations concerning his revised recommendations, but he will consider every such submission closely and critically and will, if he considers that any such submission requires scrutiny in public, hold a public hearing in respect of the revised recommendations for the relevant district.

The purpose of any such public hearing will be to consider the recommendations as revised with a view to achieving improvement in the pattern of revised wards. It would not be the Commission's intention to conduct a re-hearing of arguments already advanced, and the object would be to achieve greater community identification in conjunction with electoral equivalence in the wards within the district.

In view of the representations made at the public hearings held in respect of the provisional recommendations particularly in Fermanagh and Banbridge districts, any further representations in writing regarding the revised recommendations for those districts and in any other case for which a public hearing is sought, should be of a sufficient degree of particularity to be readily understandable by any person or body concerned either to support or oppose such representations. A public hearing is useful to the extent that the public concerned can understand and express views on what is being represented to the Commissioner.

THE FINAL STAGE

11. When all representations in writing have been considered together with any submissions made at any further public hearings, the Commissioner will submit to the Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland a report of his final recommendations regarding the number, boundaries and names of districts and their wards. Subsequently, as required by Section 50(4) of the 1972 Act, statutory effect will be given, whether with or without modifications, to the recommendations.

APPENDIX
